Despite decades of efforts to close gender disparities, men and women continue to face unequal opportunities in achieving success in fields like academia, the labor market, and politics. GGaps 2025 Conference will explore the causes and effects of these persistent gaps. The annual gathering of scholars aims to advance research on gender inequality, offering fresh insights into the mechanisms shaping disparate outcomes and fostering data-driven solutions.

We welcome submissions studying gender inequality from the fields of economics, management, sociology, and social psychology. Research at the intersection of professional aspirations, career inequality and household roles are specially invited to apply.
